Smoking ban for schools voted

by Arlene Surprenant

Momentum is building to work toward a smoke-free environment in the Wilmington school system. The school committee moved a little closer to this goal Wednesday as members approved a smoking policy to discourage teenagers from lighting up and smoking in school buildings. The committee voted six to one to include such a policy in the school handbook.

According to Dr. Jim Ficociello, who chaired the smoking sub-committee and is chairman of the Wilmington Board of Health, the sub-committee felt a three step approach to discipline repeat offenders would be most effective. For a first offense, students will be assigned to a one hour in-school suspension where they will be exposed to video tapes and lectures on "the devastating effects" of smoking. For a second offense, students will be assigned to three days of in-school suspension or enrollment in a non-smoking program. Third time offenders will be fined $50 from the board of health, as mandated by state law, under the board's ticketing bylaw, any student not paying the fine will have to appear in court for a show cause hearing.

Several committeemen applauded the sub-committee's efforts and educational approach. Chairman Shirley Callan and Supt. William Fay noted this might be the time to move forward to include faculty in the no-smoking ruling.

"It's almost a question of do what I say and not what I do," said Dr. Callan.

In a recent survey of teachers in the system, a ratio of three to one favored a smoke-free environment in local school buildings. Health teacher Alice Bertini, who also served on the sub-committee, urged board members to consider using teachers as role models.

"Those of you who are addicted have to put aside your needs for the sake of the children. The evidence is clear there are no safe levels of exposure for any of us," she said.

Planning board has new member

Eric Judson has been appointed to a five year term on the Wilmington Planning Board. Judson, a customer support engineer and a 1980 graduate of Northeastern University, will fill the vacancy created by the departure of former chairman Dave Clark, whose term expired.

Judson was one of 26 appointments and reappointments recently made to town boards and other town jobs by Town Manager Michael Caira.

Why on earth would anyone volunteer to be a Redcoat, wearing a woolen uniform on a hot day? Roy Parsons of West Street has a lot of fun taunting the Minutemen, telling them to go back to their pigs and sheep. Roy, a member of His Majesty's 47th Regiment of Foot as well as the Wilmington Company of Minutemen, took part in the Liberty Pole weekend in Wilmington.

Criminal complaint sought for failure to clean up land

by Arlene Surprenant

Criminal proceedings are being initiated against Robert Corey, trustee of Sunshine Investment Trust, for failure to clean up his Ainsworth Road property by the May 20 deadline set by the Board of Health.

The Wilmington Board of Health made the unanimous decision to bypass fines and file a criminal complaint in Woburn District Court at its meeting Monday night. The board had previously ordered Corey to remove tires, junk cars, and debris from his property. Corey told the board he felt he was not responsible for the vehicles since they did not belong to him. The board said Corey was responsible for the clean-up but the owner did have the option of bringing suit against the violators.

On Monday, Chairman Jim Ficociello said he rode by the land and it looked like nothing has been done to clear out the debris in the past six weeks. He suggested fellow members give Corey one more week to comply with their order before filing the criminal complaint against him.

In a related matter, Health Director Greg Erickson appeared at a show-cause hearing in Woburn Court May 15 to try to force Corey's neighbor, Coleman McDonough to remove construction debris from his property on Ainsworth Road. If McDonough pleads not guilty, said Erickson, he'll be arraigned then have to go to court for a pre-trial conference.

Town Crier featured on Ten O'Clock News

Town Crier readers might be interested to watch the Ten O'Clock News on Channel 44 Thursday night. Newscaster David Boeri, a native of Wilmington, visited the Town Crier as this edition was being put to bed, shooting a feature on the local newspaper.

Boeri will soon be a newsmen without a show. The Ten O'Clock News will be phased out at the end of next week. As yet, Boeri has not been picked up by another station.

He recently won an Emmy for a news segment he did on Dapper O'Neil's visit to the Mapplethorpe exhibit at the Institute of Contemporary Art.

Boeri had long wanted to shoot a feature on Capt. Larz Neilson, the publisher. The demise of the news program finally gave him the push to do the feature.

The news program is rebroadcast on Channel 2 at 11:30 p.m.

Backman is WRA chairman

Carl Backman was elected new chairman of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority last Thursday following the annual reorganization of that board.

Other newly elected officers are Vaughn Surprenant, vice chairman; Charles Gilbert, secretary; Sidney Kaiser, treasurer; and Pat Duggan, assistant treasurer.

Teachers protest layoff plan

by Arlene Surprenant

Over 100 teachers crowded into Wednesday's meeting of the Wilmington School Committee to protest the board's handling of 22 proposed layoffs throughout the system. In addition, committee members were threatened with a lawsuit if any failed to follow the Reduction in Force (RIF) policy as outlined in the teachers' contract.

"We'll litigate every one of the people on the (RIF) list because we don't agree with the way the list was made," warned Wilmington Teachers' Association (WTA) President John Wood, who added it could cost the town $500,000 for every year it takes to settle the suit.

According to WTA secretary Beverly Shea, in the past the board followed the RIF policy which states non-tenured teachers are laid off first as long as there are qualified, certified teachers to take their place. Next to be laid off would be the most junior of tenured teachers. This year, Shea told the Town Crier, the School Committee proposes laying off teachers "strictly by seniority within departments" with no credit given for years of teaching in another department. Among those slated to be let go, added Shea, are Jerry Connelly, with 24 years in the system, and WTA President John Wood.

Committeeman Peggy Kane said it was her board's goal to accomplish reductions with the least amount of disruption to the system. She said if the board follows the RIF policy, 14 non-tenured elementary teachers will be laid off and replaced by secondary teachers with certification but no previous experience at the elementary level.

"You will decimate the elementary system and I just cannot go along with this," said Kane adding the committee doesn't go along with the premise certified is qualified.

"We did it last year. It worked last year," argued Wood, referring to transfers of secondary teachers to the elementary level. "The attempt to change it (the RIF policy) now is ill-advised," Wood added.

A few committeemen expressed reservations about laying off some of the teachers with long service in the Wilmington system. Both Bob Peterson and John DeMarco questioned at least two high school teachers on the RIF list saying they don't deserve to be there. Peterson pointed out that each time he saw the list it was different. Kane admitted the changes were making her "very nervous."

In a related matter, Shea said

Supt. William Fay promised that those slated to be laid off would receive written notice. To date, said Shea, no such notice was ever received. Shea explained the WTA can't hire a lawyer to help grieve the layoffs until the teachers are notified in writing. At last week's meeting, Fay concurred that letters were not sent to teachers on the RIF list.

"If there is going to be a letter forthcoming it has to be a correct letter," Fay said, adding once the committee votes to approve the list he will inform the teachers.

Chairman Shirley Callan told the teachers she was disappointed at the failure of the Teachers' Association to "honestly negotiate" to reopen their contract to possibly save jobs.

"We're still requesting the WTA to come to the table and we still have nothing," said Dr. Callan.

Following further heated discussion on the negotiation issue and the interpretation of the sub-committee's meeting with the WTA executive board, the teachers angrily walked out in a body, but not before committeemen tabled a vote on the RIF List until they meet tonight (Wednesday) with their attorney, Town Counsel Alan Altman.

Day care could show $130k profit

by Arlene Surprenant

Parents of elementary students in the Wilmington School System can begin signing their youngsters up for extended day care following last week's unanimous approval by the Wilmington School Committee. The self supporting program was proposed by the Wilmington Business/School Partnership and approved for operation this fall by committee members.

The program will run in each of the system's three elementary schools to save on transportation costs. The schedule provides for breakfast, informal activities, and supervised leisure time from 7 to 9 a.m. five days a week and a snack and more structured program from 3 to 6 p.m. each afternoon. Start-up costs will be financed through the $10 per child registration fee. There will reportedly be one certified teacher per 20 youngsters.

In a report last Wednesday, School Committeeman Aldo Caira said response to a recent survey as well as from his 14 member sub committee has been totally in support of the day care program. He said there were a few concerns about the director's salary and a need to see a rationale for some of the figures associated with the proposals, but overall, his sub-committee felt the program was worthwhile.

As outlined, school officials anticipate making a $130,000 profit on the entire operation. Total tuition and fees are expected to come out to $341,461 while anticipated expenses would total $211,249.

Fincom member Walter Kaminski said with the large profit margin, he felt the program will pay for itself. He said he also favored the neighborhood concept to keep the program at all three schools and save on transportation costs.

Parents interested in signing up their children should watch the local cable station and area newspapers for further information. Or they may contact their child's principal.

Warning issued on illegal dumping case

by Arlene Surprenant
A complaint of illegal dumping on property off Kendall Road led the Wilmington Board of Health to issue a warning to the owners on Monday night.

Chairman Jim Ficociello warned Richard Peterson and his daughter Brenda they had a month to clean up the rubbish and wood piled on the back of their property. Peterson said the actual property owner is his wife Emma who is currently in a Boston hospital.

Peterson explained the previous owner had a sandpit on the property and household rubbish was dumped on site. He said people park there at night and continue to dump things they no longer want on site.

"We're not doing the dumping; we've cleaned it," maintained Brenda.

Ficociello pointed out under state law the Petersons have to clean the lot. However, he added, they have the option of taking the perpetrators to court.

Board members gave the Petersons a month to clean the site and report back to the board. They also urged the family to contact local police whenever they noticed future violations of the law. No fines were issued in this case.

Teacher's sick leave under dispute

by Arlene Surprenant
A predicament caused by an outbreak of Fifth's Disease at the Shawsheen School in Wilmington led to some strong words at last week's meeting of the Wilmington School Committee.

Elementary teacher Diane Flaherty, who is pregnant with twins, applied for sick leave a few months ago on the advice of her doctor. Fifth's Disease poses a danger to unborn children. Supt. William Fay told her she could apply to the system's sick bank. Fay told committeemen last Wednesday he had made an error in advising Mrs. Flaherty because teachers can't apply to sick bank for pregnancy related items. He said at that time he had no where else to place the teacher though, since then, Mrs. Flaherty was offered a position as a permanent substitute.

The whole issue was slated to be brought up in an executive session later that evening. However, during the open meeting, Mrs. Flaherty's father-in-law was outspoken on the administration's handling of the whole matter.

Flaherty said the issue was not his daughter-in-law's pregnancy but the fact that the administration couldn't supply a safe work environment.

"It would cost three lives for her to go to work," he said.

Committeeman John DeMarco said, after researching the disease, he learned the teacher would be no more likely to contact the disease than if she were sitting in a movie theater or a doctor's waiting room. Flaherty argued, with 10 students diagnosed with Fifth's Disease in her classroom alone, there was a good chance his daughter-in-law could come down with it as well. Flaherty added Diane Flaherty did offer to work elsewhere in the system and she has been following Fay's advice.

"I did everything within my power to resolve this issue," maintained Fay. He explained though administrators had never encountered this issue before, he and John Wood, president of the local teachers' union, agreed the only alternative was for Diane to take sick leave.

Chairman Shirley Callan cautioned the men to hold any further comments until the executive session.

Owners of two dogs considered to be vicious by Animal Control Officer Ellen Davis and the Wilmington Board of Health will be asked to appear at a hearing in June. Health officials took up the issue at their meeting Monday night.

Complaints were filed against John and Susan Piro of Floradale Avenue for letting their two German Shepherds and doberman pinscher run loose in their neighborhood. One of the dogs, a male German Shepherd called Winston, had previously bitten a woman and is required to wear an orange collar to warn people away.

Board Chairman Jim Ficociello favored banning the dog from Wilmington.

"We're not going to wait for this dog to maul some kid," said Ficociello as he urged members to hold a hearing on the issue.

Health Director Greg Erickson said the only real problem at this time was the dog getting loose. The board decided to write a letter to the Piro's and request them to come in for a hearing June 30. In the meantime, Davis has the power to issue fines for loose dogs. Under her regulations, owners can be fined $10 for a first offense and $25 for a second offense.

A second dog is owned by 90-year-old Gilbert Greenberg of Woburn Street. The board was told Greenberg has been bitten several times by his dog but refuses to give him up. After the last incident, which required Greenberg to have 18 stitches, the dog was placed in quarantine.

"This is definitely an excessively vicious dog," said Ficociello as he asked Erickson to request that Greenberg and his family come in for a hearing.

GUARD YOUR REAL ESTATE ROLLOVER

For most homeowners, the house represents the best tax shelter available: not only are interest and taxes deductible, but the capital gain realized when the home is sold usually can be rolled over to the next case, if certain conditions are met.

Sometimes, though, things don't move so smoothly. Right now, for instance, in a depressed real estate market, some people are having trouble selling and, if they must move, attempt to rent out property until the market gets better. What happens?

The taxfree rollover is not available for investment real estate, so the homeowner must meet certain criteria: the rental must be temporary, and it must be an incidental part of selling the home. The homeowner must make an effort to sell, and should not rent without a statement from the real estate broker that market conditions are stalling the sale. A lease should be short term, with provisions to show the property to prospective buyers.

So many transactions have tax ramifications. Discuss them with the tax advisors.

Correction:

A letter to the editor in the May 15 edition of the Town Crier had an incorrect address.

The letter was written by Barbara Flanagan representing the group RORNA, Restore Our Residential Neighborhood Association. In the letter, she asked for a $1 donation to cover legal costs incurred in that group's legal battle with the board of appeals. A recent town meeting article seeking compensation was defeated.

The correct address should have been 278 Pine Street, not 398 Main Street, as printed.

Our apologies for the mistake.

Wilmington school news

Woburn Street School
Students at the Woburn Street School enjoyed a BMX bicycle demonstration Wednesday May 15. The beautiful spring weather allowed this demonstration to take place out of doors and made the viewing more exciting. Students watched freestyle bicycle stunts with awe and learned all about bicycle safety and the importance of wearing protective gear even when enjoying every day bicycling. Our sincerest thanks to the Pac for funding this wonderful enrichment program.

Art teacher Mrs. Shack announced the Woburn Street School Earth Day poster contest winners: Melissa Connell of C-5 was first place winner; Caitlen Wright also of C-5 won second place and Kerry Parker of C-10 placed third. Congratulations for a job well done.

Mrs. Marshall's first graders have been busy putting together a book entitled "All About Us." Each child has written one page about him/herself and anxiously awaits the big publication. Students in C-3 have also been enjoying "vowel days" in which the children take in long and short vowel items from home and do papers for each letter. Ms. Proias class has started a rock unit in the classroom and are continuing to write books to display on young authors' night.

A funzone jog-a-thon was held last week in anticipation of the playground's first jog-a-thon to be held May 31. Pledge sheets have been distributed to the children. The enthusiastic response of the students was overwhelming, we look forward to a fulfilled day. Star Share Days of the playground will be May 21, 22 and 23. Support the Funzone Playground, shop Star Market on these days and five percent of your sales is donated. Star certificates may be picked up at the Woburn Street School and the library. This has been a very successful fundraiser in the past, we look forward to your continued support.

Nominations for next year's executive board are now being accepted. Elections are held at the June PAC meeting. Nomination papers are available in the school office for those interested.

Nature's classroom

Nature's Classroom is a unique education program for what it teaches students and for the attitudes it conveys to them. For five days and four nights beginning October 28, 1991 children from the Shawsheen School, grade five, will be attending Nature's Classroom in Andover, Ct.

On Wednesday, May 15, the Wilmington School Committee approved the proposed trip to Nature's Classroom. There is still time for interested parents to register their children for this most worthwhile of trips.

Readers

The Shawsheen School celebrated "Readers' Day" some months ago inviting interested members of the community into the school to read aloud to the children. The program was so successful that many of the readers asked if they might continue reading on a regular basis. For many weeks readers have been going to the school to read to classes. Most recently Mrs. Smith read to Ms. Quinlan's fourth grade class. Following the reading of "Counting Wildflowers" by Bruce McMillan, Mrs. Smith distributed pansies to each member of the class. They discussed the difference between annual and perennial flowers and their care.

Other readers purchase the books they read and then donate them to the school library, some take visual aides, all take a vitality and excitement that the children look forward to with great anticipation.

Kindergarten notes

Dr. Giamberardino, a dentist and father of Andrew in Mrs. Graham's class, visited Wednesday, May 15. He spoke with the children about good dental care, teeth brushing and good nutrition. Dr. Giamberardino stayed to help out as the children did various activities related to teeth. He gave each child a toothbrush and a coloring book on dental health. He was able to provide a new toothbrush for all the P.M. children as well. Even Mrs. Tildsley and Mrs. Graham got one! A big thank you card went home Friday with son Andrew.

Memorial Day essays by students

The Shawsheen Elementary School in Wilmington recently participated in a Memorial Day Program that featured patriotic band selections expertly performed by the Elementary Band, a rendition of the Battle Hymn of the Republic sung by the school's chorus, and original essays on "What Memorial Day Means to Me" written and read by fourth grader Joel McKenna and fifth graders Rebecca Rogers and Michael Nolan. Their compositions:

Memorial Day

by Joel McKenna

When I think about Memorial Day, I mostly think about my grandfather. He was in the 10th Mountain Division in World War II. I remember some of his stories, even though I was only seven when he died. Now I just have the flag from his funeral and some of his medals up in my closet. I feel proud when I see them. Then I think of all the other soldiers who served in all the other wars.

You really shouldn't honor only those soldiers from recent wars, but also those who served and died as long ago as the Revolutionary War. In fact, every American who has ever died in a battle deserves a special place in our memory. The deeds and sacrifices of those who may not, now, have grandsons to honor them, should not go unremembered. This duty has been handed down to us.

This year Memorial Day will be a little sadder for us because the Gulf War has just ended and there are new names to add to the list of Americans who have died in battle.

Memorial Day isn't just monuments, speeches and parades. It's honoring those who have died in past wars, but hoping that, in the future, countries can settle their differences without going to war.

What Memorial Day means to me

by Rebecca Rogers

At first, I didn't know much about Memorial Day. I knew it was a day to honor the soldiers who died in one of the American wars. I also knew it was known as Decoration Day, but that was it.

I usually thought, "Great, Memorial Day, an extra day out of school." But now I know the true meaning. Memorial Day is a day we take to remember those who gave their lives for their country. I think everyone should know what Memorial Day is. I don't think it should be known as a day out of school. Many men died in the Civil War, Spanish-American War, World Wars I and II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War. Those were the men with all the courage in the world.

So on Memorial Day, don't argue with your family and have a bad day. Have a good day and celebrate the joy of having your life. I think that's the way the soldiers who died proudly would have wanted it. That's what Memorial Day means to me.

A true cultural leader

by Arlene Surprenant

She did it! As early as the spring of 1990, Wilmington's Performing Arts Director Lorraine Kalil had a vision. She envisioned a completely renovated auditorium with a new stage curtain, modern seats, new lighting and sound systems, and a spanking clean look all over. She envisioned a community place where residents could come together to enjoy musical productions, concerts, dramatic plays, and lectures on faraway places. A real cultural center — a source of pride to the whole town.

Lorraine Kalil's vision will soon become a reality. Last week, with news that the goal of $156,900 has been reached, it could be expected that she would want to breathe a deserved sigh of relief and let up on her unwavering efforts to secure the needed funds. Instead, she was in the forefront of efforts to raise additional funds, directing an outstanding concert of 18th Century music.

This town could use more Lorraine Kalils. While she couldn't have done as much as she's done without the support of Supt. Bill Fay and a dedicated staff and committee; the many volunteers who participated in the Celebration of the Arts; and organizations like the Wilmington Minutemen, which shared her vision, Miss Kalil provided the real impetus for the whole auditorium project. Because of her, students and adults alike will reap the benefits of the town wide cultural facility for a long time to come. To you, Lorraine, we offer our gratitude and a heartfelt thanks for a job well done.

Bloopers and blunders

by George R. Allan

Awareness and protection of our environment have increased dramatically over the last two decades. That's not to say there haven't been mistakes along the way. Here are a few that come to mind.

Perhaps the quintessential environmental faux pas is Love Canal, located in upstate New York. Here we had a chemical company that was dumping tons of toxins into the canal in the early 1950s. Then they sold the land for $1 to the local school board who built a school on the property. Houses soon followed. As the years passed, noxious liquids and gases began showing up. The area subsequently had to be evacuated and was declared a disaster area by President Carter.

Politicians, as usual, can be counted on for some bloopers. A Reagan foible occurred during his first term when he stated that "trees cause pollution." Apparently, he did not realize that trees absorb carbon dioxide, which is one of the major causes of the greenhouse effect. His favorite tree was a horizontal one.

When the history of environmental protection is written, the Superfund Program will not be one of its most glorious chapters. This is a program that measures cleanup activities in decades, not years. A Congressional Committee has accused it of messing up the clean-up, instead of cleaning up the mess. Perhaps it is political inference or fear of litigation that makes the EPA study and re-study hazardous waste sites. A good example is the Industri-Plex site in Woburn. Discovered in 1979, the site remains contaminated. It does, however, have a nice chain link fence surrounding it.

I am not making this next one up. It is an example of the great lengths the federal government will go to solve some of our critical environmental problems. A research project has been funded that will determine the amount of methane given off by cow burps and cow droppings. Methane is one of the gases that contributes to global warming. You can sleep better knowing your tax dollars are keeping us on the cutting edge of environmental research. It sounds like a lot of bull to me.

File this one under "it's not easy being green." The highly advertised degradable plastic trash bags have a slight problem. Hoping to win over environmentally conscious or green consumers, they were hyped to breakdown in landfills. However, they need sunlight to decompose and obviously it is difficult to catch many rays buried under a mountain of trash. These eco-friendly ads are dissolving as consumer groups file lawsuits against the manufacturer for deceptive advertising.

Question: Who is the worst polluter in the country? If you answered Exxon or the chemical companies, you have been taken in by the headlines. The answer is Uncle Sam, specifically, the military. It has over 14,000 hazardous waste sites at 1,500 bases throughout the country. For years the federal government exempted federal properties from pollution laws. A local example of the years of neglect is the Otis Air Base on Cape Cod, which is contaminating regional water supplies. The price tag to cleanup these sites nationwide is estimated at 200 billion dollars.

Then there are the environmental groups. Some serve a useful purpose; others are counterproductive. These extremists are the doomsayers who would like to bring the country back to the days before the Industrial Revolution. They are more interested in publicity than protection. Searching for a no risk society, they have created a pollution hysteria among the public.

The age of environmental innocence ended with Love Canal. Since then there have been some blunders on the road to environmental protection, but fortunately they have been outweighed by the successes.

frankly speaking

By Kevin John Sowyrda

A potentially explosive lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court last week, charging Selectmen Jay Kelley, Tom Camara and former selectman Bill Hurton with civil rights violations relating to the dismissal of three members of the Tewksbury Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

Plaintiffs Peter Downing, Bruce Gordon and Charles Stella charge that their civil rights were violated when they were ousted from the ZBA by the board of selectmen, following a sensational series of events which brought public scrutiny on the zoning board's decisions.

"The defendant selectmen attempted to coerce the plaintiffs into resigning from the ZBA by making disparaging and threatening remarks about the plaintiffs, such as statements by the defendant Camara that he had information that the plaintiffs were engaged in illegal acts and he would expose these acts if they did not resign," the nine-page law suit charges.

The crux of the legal action is that the Tewksbury Board of Selectmen abrogated due process in removing the zoning board members. Massachusetts law, Chapter 40A section 12 outlines procedures for removing zoning board members, procedures which the lawsuit contends were willfully ignored.

The suit, filed for the plaintiffs by Boston Attorney Harvey A. Schwartz, details events leading to the creation of a new three member zoning board and the impeachment of Messrs. Downing, Gordon and Stella.

On October 31, 1989 the board of selectmen created a subcommittee to investigate allegations that the zoning board had acted improperly in granting local variances. Selectmen Coppolla and Kelley concluded that there were no substantive allegations, and that at the very most the ZBA was guilty of simply having "... taken a liberal interpretation of Chapter 40A and applied the interpretation to certain variances."

This finding was not to suffice the appetite of an angry electorate.

Selectmen Kelley and Hurton would later move for removal of four ZBA members. Their motion was one vote short of victory until Tom Camara joined the board in April of 1990.

The law suit focuses attention on Camara's campaign promise to remove the ZBA members, and his signature to that affect on a well known petition circulated in the community.

On May 5, 1990, town meeting passed an article transforming the ZBA to a three member board. The lawsuit emphasizes that defendant Jay Kelley successfully amended the article to require that the incumbent ZBA board members not be included on the new board.

The Massachusetts Attorney General later ruled Kelley's amendment illegal, and the lawsuit describes it as "... a sham ... intended to remove members of the ZBA without the procedures of Chapter 40A, section 12".

Nonetheless, the culmination of events was the ouster of Downing, Gordon and Stella from the ZBA.

The former ZBA members' lawsuit comes at the heels of a possible legal action affecting other municipal officials in Tewksbury. Selectman Thomas Camara may be on the verge of a complaint alleging that certain town officials conducted an "unlawful" search of his Washington Street property.

Town Counsel Charles Zaroulis seemed to dismiss the Downing, Gordon and Stella lawsuit as a "slap action" intended "to have a chilling affect on public debate and government issues." Zaroulis said that the board of selectmen followed proper procedures and that the former ZBA members had the opportunity to appeal the decisions leading to their removal from office. "If people have simple remedies at hand, and then pursue this course of action, that is what's known as a slap action", said Zaroulis, who acted as legal counsel to the selectmen during the dismissal proceedings.

Nonetheless, Attorney Schwartz may have a good track record for this case. The Boston Attorney was retained by former officials in Hull who had been removed from a town board, alleging a violation of due process, similar to the Tewksbury ZBA case. Schwartz recently won a significant settlement against the municipality.

Briefly in Politics...

The Paul Tsongas presidential fundraising train pulls into Wilmington Thursday night, with a scheduled $125 a head event at Rocco's Restaurant. The guest of honor will be the former senator's wife Niki Tsongas, and the host committee includes such local luminaries as Selectman Bob Cain, School Committeemen Aldo Caira and Bob Peterson, former selectman Rocco DePasquale and Bill Gustus the former Middlesex County Treasurer. Coordinating the event is Democratic State Committeeman Jay Donovan, who is working with Nick Rizzo, Tsongas' fundraising chief.

Former Wilmington town manager Reginald Staczynski, now serving in Andover, was leading the city and town storm troopers on Beacon Hill this week. Staczynski is the president of the Massachusetts Municipal Association and joined hundreds of colleagues in protesting the latest rounds of proposed local aid cuts. "The proposal is totally unacceptable to the cities and towns and it would devastate the most needy municipalities, and it would do a disservice to the citizens who voted for Question Five in the expectation that local services would be a priority," said Staczynski.

The RIF Policy, the bible of who to layoff in the Wilmington School System, has recently divided the school committee into two camps. One side might be called "RIF Revisionists", those who believe it is legal to layoff tenured teachers prior to non-tenured professionals, an act some consider taboo in the education business. More conservative board members, wanting to obey a strict interpretation of the longstanding policy guide, contend that it is illegal to layoff any tenured teacher before a non-tenured, and that by doing so the town could be vulnerable to legal action.

The issue may be laid to rest Wednesday evening. According to School Committeeman Phil Fenton, the committee will review the Assed vs. Berlin/West Boylston Regional School Committee case. That publicized legal decision held that a tenured teacher could not be let go prior to a non-tenured teacher.

"It's not ethical to layoff the tenured teachers first; non-tenured professionals are probationary", said Fenton.

25 years ago

The May 26, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

The planning board had declared war on a sign proposed to be erected on Main Street in the Silver Lake area. To be constructed of metal, the sign was to be erected by an outdoor advertising firm of Boston. Chairman A. Daniel Gillis told the board that in previous years, selectmen had given adverse reports to similar proposals and only once was the Outdoor Division defeated - when we used "brass knuckles" when three members of the planning board "went in there and fought it out - and we stopped it."

A testimonial to honor Dr.

LePore was being planned. He had been serving on the staff of Lowell General for two years and planned to terminate his work there in the near future and to open a practice in Wilmington.

Bob Yetman of Shawshen Avenue and others met with the board of selectmen to complain that nothing had been done to clean up after two accidents in his area, there was glass in the street and a general mess. The group felt that their road was being neglected and asked for additional police presence. TM Henneberger replied that added police protection did not necessarily prevent accidents from happening.

Donald Farnam a 25-year-old WHS graduate who already had a chest full of medals, was recommended to receive the Distinguished Flying Cross.

David Boeri, of Lloyd Road was named by Post 136, American Legion for a week at Boys State. David Winters was named alternate.

Alfred Lawrence, of Gowing Road, Dennis Crispo of Hopkins Street and Marc Bliss of Glen Road had completed two weeks recruit training at Great Lakes, Illinois. They would now be attached to local naval reserve units.

Elia's offered chuck steak at 47 cents a pound, radishes at five cents a bunch and hot dog rolls, 29 cents a dozen.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

It has come to our attention that due to the budget crisis, it is necessary to lay off teaching staff. Because we all have school age children, we are concerned about how these staff layoffs will affect the quality of education in Wilmington schools. We are aware that teachers have received their pink slips according to seniority, because of this policy, it will necessitate losing teachers of extraordinary caliber, such as Miss Leanne Sadowski, a first grade teacher at the Shawsheen Elementary School.

We, as the parents of Miss Sadowski's current first grade class, would like to make you aware of what an exceptional teacher Miss Sadowski is. She is cognizant of the individual academic needs of all her students, from the brightest to those needing extra academic help. Consequently, she provides the appropriate learning materials according to the individual needs of each student. For example, she has established, on her own time, an after school club geared to helping children with phonics skills and remedial reading.

She also has a gifted student in her class who was bored by first grade work and she has provided her with upper grade level material to keep her from being bored. She keeps the average first grade student motivated to learn by making learning interesting and fun coupled with large doses of praise and encouragement.

She is so wonderful to our children because she is so loving, kind and nurturing that children who previously hated school now eagerly anticipate each day.

She disciplines our children in constructive ways. She does not embarrass our children by screaming at and humiliating them in front of their fellow students.

She is also accessible to the parents. If there is a problem with your child, it is not unusual to receive a phone call to inform you about it and discuss possible solutions.

At a time when educational programs are being cut, it is our teaching staff who will have to take up the slack. However, how can this occur when those who would go the extra mile for our children are fired? The schools give our children certificates of merit when they excel academically, but what do we give a teacher without tenure who excels her pink slip? We ask ourselves, why a school system entrusted with educating our children, would allow the loss of a teacher of this caliber while others who lack her merit as a teacher languish on because of tenure?

There has to be something wrong with a system that would allow the loss of a teacher who has demonstrated such excellence. We as the parents and taxpayers feel strongly that the current policy of tenure, by seniority alone, as the deciding factor in teacher layoffs, is a travesty which should be addressed...

Most sincerely,

The disappointed parents

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

This is an open letter to the person or persons who have taken it upon themselves to remove items from Wildwood Cemetery.

It's not fair to those of us who have only this way of showing our love and respect for those who are gone.

Mothers' Day has just passed and Memorial Day is fast approaching and you made it, next to impossible, not only for me, but for many people who just want to show love, to place anything on the graves of their families.

I can't understand why you would even want some of the things that you have taken.

One of the things that you took, was a three foot plastic container, that I had placed in Wildwood for my mother. The only thing that was in that container was all the plastic and silk flowers that my mother loves so much. Why would you want them, they didn't mean anything to you, but I cried the day I took my father, and we put them there together.

I also cried the day I arrived and they were gone!!

Isn't it bad enough that I lost my brother, mother, sister and father all within four and half years, but now I have to endure you.

Not only have you taken things, but you have also taken a little bit of my heart.

I certainly hope you can sleep at night, and I hope that when the day comes that you also lose someone that no one does to you, what you have done to me.

Thank you, Town Crier for letting me get this off my chest.

I know that there are signs posted at all the entrances, but evidently that doesn't mean anything to some people.

Connie Baker Carroll

Dear Larz:

In recent weeks, a great deal has been written about the Brady Bill in the national press. Unfortunately, much that has been written and said about the bill is untrue.

While every American feels very sorry for all the pain and suffering that Jim Brady has had to endure, the bill named after him must still be debated openly and honestly.

A few weeks ago, Congressman Charles E. Schumer (D-NY), Chairman of the House Subcommittee on Crime and Criminal Justice, held hearings on the Brady Bill.

Unfortunately, opponents of the bill, including Congressmen and expert witnesses, were barred from those hearings. Apparently, Congressman Schumer has about as much respect for the first Amendment as he has shown for the second.

Among those not allowed to testify was Jacquie Miller, one of the victims in the highly publicized "assault weapon" shooting at the Standard Graveure printing plant in Louisville, Kentucky.

Like James Brady, Jacquie was severely wounded and is confined to a wheelchair. But unlike Brady, she was not allowed to testify as a pro-gun witness. You see, Jacquie was armed, and had she not stopped to render assistance to a victim of the shooting, was within seconds of ending Westbecker's mad shooting spree with her own .38 revolver.

I am pro-gun and support the right to keep and bear arms. The Brady Bill is not a harmless waiting period, but a permit to purchase law. It would change gun ownership from a right to a privilege that could be granted or denied at the whim of a police chief. Whether you are pro or anti-gun, wouldn't you agree with the public's right to know this information?

If you need further information, I would recommend that you contact Gun Owners of America (703) 321-8585. They are a Washington, D.C. based pro-gun lobby group that can provide some balance to anti-gun groups like Handgun Control that wrote the Brady Bill. Sarah Brady is Chairman of Handgun Control, Inc.

Sincerely,

Walter J. Severer

Dear Larz:

Another shot at the "powers that be," whoever they happen to be..

Some years back the Commonwealth of Massachusetts informed the then Wilmington Chief of Police that Wilmington could not direct traffic at state highway intersections, so the little silver traffic control officers box disappeared from the intersection of Main and Church Street-Burlington Avenue. Motorists now had to rely on a set of traffic lights and traffic backed up beyond Lowell Street to the south and Shawsheen Avenue to the north.

When the cost of gas became exorbitant, the Federal Government in all its wisdom allowed states to permit right turns on red lights at selected intersections.

Massachusetts became one of the last states in the Union to allow a right turn on red only after it was threatened with loss of federal highway funds, and then only at a few selected intersections. Then you could make a right turn on red from Main Street onto Church Street, but you could not make a right turn from Church Street onto Main Street, that is until the Burlington Avenue bridge was closed for much needed repairs.

After the bridge closing the "no turn on red" sign was removed and you could now turn right on red onto Main Street from Church Street.

Now that the bridge is repaired and reopened the "no turn on red" sign has reappeared to traffic approaching it on Church Street. Traffic now backs up beyond the post office once again.

How about you enlisting the aid of the Wilmington Minutemen to begin a march at 2 a.m. some morning armed with screwdrivers and wrenches to the Burlington Avenue bridge to tear down this dumb "no turn on red" sign.

The cry could be "to arms, to arms, down with dumb signs."

Stay well,

George F. Quinn

backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

Did you notice how showy the dogwoods were this spring? Driving around town last weekend I couldn't help but admire the white and pink dogwoods at their colorful peaks. Northern Massachusetts is at the very northern border of hardiness for this spectacular tree, and you can expect a poor to non-existent bloom whenever winter temperatures get down to minus 12 degrees F. This past winter was relatively mild (we had one or two nights down to six or seven below) and this explains the great dogwood display this year.

A Tewksbury gardener called last weekend to complain that some night stalking critter was digging holes in his lawn. Every morning there were several fresh two inch holes and she asked who the culprit was, and how could she save her lawn. Without much doubt, the villain is a skunk, digging for grubs in your lawn. Skunks feed primarily at night and among their favorite foods are Japanese beetle grubs. These grubs are in the top three inches of soil feeding on tender grass roots and waiting for late July to appear as mature beetles. To eliminate grubs from your lawn and stop this nocturnal hole digging, buy a bag of diazinon granules from a local garden supply center and apply as directed on the container. Wet the area thoroughly immediately after treating the lawn and your problem will be resolved.

From J.P. of Wilmington comes a note with the following question; "...in a column last spring you suggested holding off the planting of cukes and squash until June 5 or so, to be sure the soil is thoroughly warm. Since we seem to be running two weeks ahead of schedule this year, is it O.K. to plant these vegetable seeds now?"

No problem. Your observation is correct and we can plant everything now, with the possible exception of the root crops, this weekend. I'd suggest you wait until June 10 before planting radishes, beets and carrots, to insure that root chewing maggots (the larva of several species of flies) have exited the soil.

T.W. of Wilmington sent a short note, asking for a discussion on the advisability of "suckering" her tomato plants, versus letting them grow wild and unstaked. I suggested to her that her question is a good one, but I am deferring an answer until late in June. Timing is everything in life. We'll get back to this question in five or six weeks.

A reader in Tewksbury phoned to say that he is a new resident in town and is preparing his first vegetable garden. His concern is squirrels which, he claims are out of control in his area population wise. How, he asked, can he protect his garden from these pests? The good news is that squirrels are not a serious problem for vegetable gardeners.

The single exception would be with sweet corn, which squirrels (and raccoons) will go after in August. Since very few gardeners grow their own corn, this is not a matter of concern. If you plan to feed the birds next winter, you will have problems with squirrels, but that is another story for another time.

Shawsheen School teacher honored for excellence

Karen Larrabee

After 16 years out of teaching, Mrs. Larrabee returned to Salem State College to begin graduate work in art education.

After resuming teaching, Mrs. Larrabee developed and implemented in-service workshops on integrating art into the curriculum for Wilmington teachers. She was also awarded a Horace Mann grant for preparation of an American Art Appreciation Curriculum Guide. She has coordinated exhibitions of student art and has submitted her students' imaginative works — such as tissue paper dinosaurs, a media still life, a torn paper mountain composition, and safety posters, to competitions where many of them have won awards. Mrs. Larrabee has also coordinated the preparation of students of Valentine cards for armed service veterans in veteran hospitals and for those in active service from Wilmington now in the Persian Gulf.

A popular project was Mrs. Larrabee's introduction of fifth graders to the study of gravestones — their carvings, history and the culture they revealed. But it was an experience with a blind student whose talents greatly enriched her second grade art classes that led Mrs. Larrabee to apply for a grant on adapting art lessons for the visually impaired.

MAAE is a statewide non-profit organization that advocates education in the arts, both in and out of schools. The awards were given to bring attention to exemplary arts programs throughout the state and to instill pride in the communities where the recipients teach. MAAE is the local affiliate of the National Alliance for Arts Education, a joint project of the John F. Kennedy Center for performing arts and the division of education of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Living proof that some of the biggest steps made by medicine are the smallest ones.

In a medical emergency, there's no question where the Froilan family will turn for help. Though other hospitals are the same distance away, New England Memorial holds a special place in their hearts. When Mr. Froilan required an emergency appendectomy, when son Roger, Jr., required emergency stitches, New England Memorial provided swift, skilled care. So when the tip of 3-year-old Lisa's toe was severed as a door closed on it, they knew exactly where to go.

What they didn't know, however, was how much specialized care Lisa's injury would require—above and beyond the stitches so often viewed as standard emergency room fare. To save Lisa's toe, New England Memorial emergency room specialists promptly recognized the need for plastic surgery and were able to respond because of a unique on-call arrangement that provides 24-hour-a-day plastic surgery coverage.

Today, Lisa is an active little gymnast who is probably too young to remember what happened to her toe. But her family will never forget. Living proof that quality emergency care can make a very big difference in a little one's life.

18th century video

The theme was 18th century combat, but the reality is late 20th century. While participants clashed with muskets and bayonettes, photographers and video cameramen moved about recording the scene.

Silence, please!

Laura Knoettner wasn't particularly fond of the sound of musket fire which the Minutemen and Redcoats produced during the Liberty Pole parade. Pushing the carriage is her dad, Brad.

18th century concert

As the People's Chorus prepared to start the 18th century concert, a couple of late-arriving British troops moved to the front of the Congregational Church. The concert included Jim Goodwin, Barbara Mette and Ward Dilmore on brass, Barbara Zaino on the dulcimer, Marge Newman on the recorder, Allyson Murray on piano, and Susan Zraket and Ward Dilmore on strings. The director was Lorraine Kalil.

Weld in a tricorn

"You know I'm not running for re-election if I allow myself to be photographed in this hat," said Gov. William Weld, speaking from the gazebo on Wilmington Common. He proceeded to deliver a rousing anti-tax speech, well received by the Minutemen. The Redcoats departed in protest.

Birthday performance

Allyson Murray made a hit with her performance of a Mozart sonata during the 18th century concert at the Congregational Church. The concert, by the way, was on her 14th birthday. Turning the page for her was Performing Arts Director Lorraine Kalil.

WCTV to film Senior Promenade

The second annual Senior Promenade, sponsored by the Wilmington High School Pac, will be held Wednesday, May 29 in the high school gym. This is a special time that gives each prom-goer a chance to take center stage during the popular grand march as they are presented to family and friends.

Starting at 5:30 p.m., WCTV will be present to capture the excitement of this year's Promenade. Paul Curtin and Chester Soderquist, the formal attendants for this event, will greet and assist the lovely young women and handsome young men as they alight from their limousines. The video camera will focus on each exciting moment before the seniors head to their prom at the Danversport Yacht Club.

So that everything will run smoothly and efficiently, seniors and their dates are being asked to park in the school lot behind the tennis courts. Visitors should park in the Swain School parking area.

For those who can make it to the school early, Burlington Studios will be at the school between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. to take formal snapshots. Other photos will be taken at the prom.

The Promenade is slated to start at 5:45 p.m. A special senior video will be broadcast on Channels 30 and 52 from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. The tape was compiled by Chet and Cheryl Soderquist, Sandra Curtin, and other PAC members. The video features members of the senior class and messages from their parents.

For those who can't attend this enjoyable evening, WCTV plans to rebroadcast both the senior video and the Promenade on local stations in the weeks ahead.

Memorial Day celebration at Arts Center

The Wilmington Arts Center has had many successful and enjoyable events in the past but last Sunday afternoon it was truly a Wilmington affair! Requests from many in the large attendance prompted the council to give a repeat opportunity on Monday, May 27 from 11 a.m. (or at the conclusion of the Memorial Day Parade) until 2 in the afternoon. It was suggested that many might like to take advantage of the proximity of the Arts Center to Wildwood Cemetery where so many townspeople visit especially on Memorial Day.

The gallery was filled with old time photographs of Wilmington from the late 1700s and wonderful gravestone rubbings done by Ms. Adele Passmore. Her exhibit "Wilmington Past" A Photographic Journey" proved of tremendous interest. Persons who had come from the Minutemen activities on the Common and at Rotary Park expressed their desires to be able to spend more time examining the old pictures.

An exhibit of old artifacts shown by Liz White (chairman of the Arts Council) was extremely popular. A very large, old American flag having only 46 stars had an accompanying sign, asking if you could identify the missing four states. Can you?

Over the organ were the six paintings of Wilmington's churches so beautifully portrayed by Dan Ballou, Sr. They are significantly appropriate in this - Wilmington's Art Center.

Hard to describe was the beautiful, haunting music provided by Barbara Zaino playing the dulcimer and by Marjorie Newman of Wakefield playing a tenor recorder. The hall was filled with the gentle and plaintive tones of the instruments and Ms. Zaino's lovely voice singing 18th Century melodies.

FACE SAVING MEASURES

It is a good thing that men are in no hurry to shave their faces first thing in the morning. Once a man gets out of bed, it takes at least 10 minutes for accumulated fluids within facial tissues to redistribute themselves. Also, a man should not rely solely on his shaving cream to help him shave smoothly. The warm water that he splashes on his face before applying the shaving cream is what is responsible for expanding and softening his whiskers. As for the shave itself, it should be accomplished with delicate strokes along the grain of hair growth. The whiskers of the chin and upper lip should be shaved last because these hairs are the toughest and benefit most from a longer softening period. Most days are difficult enough to face without nicked and bloodied chin.

Men and women both need to be careful with their skin. Too much sun, heat or the wrong cleansers can damage sensitive skin and hair. Let us introduce you to our line of Matrix skin and hair care products like SI-Complex or our Firming Eye Cream, when you call us at SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON, 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington, (508) 658-9475.

Hours: open six days and nights of the week, closed Sun. We wish you a happy and safe Memorial Day!!

Three dollars off men's haircuts with this column. Expires May 29, 1991.

HINT: Men should consider the use of a face saving moisturizer instead of after shave lotions.

Neatness counts

They're having a beauty contest in Wilmington. But before you run out the door to the hairdresser, realize that it's a Mailbox Improvement Contest. The Wilmington Post Office is sponsoring the contest, looking for improvements such as correct height (42 inches), clear marking of name and number, and cleaning out of any bee nests or other unfriendly insects. The mail carriers will award two prizes on each mail route. This mailbox is on Chestnut Street.

Bugs are back but so are the sprayers

Mosquito season is here, as if anyone needs to be told. Warming temperatures coupled with standing water from spring rains has resulted in the season's first emergence of adult mosquitoes.

Spraying for mosquitoes used to be done by individual towns. That work has been taken over in recent years by a state agency, the Central Massachusetts Mosquito Control Project (CMMCP).

Spraying is conducted on a less intensive basis than was done by the town, but there is an additional project. Breeding sites are monitored and treated with larvicide.

The ultra-low volume spray operation is conducted during evening hours. Special requests or spraying for special town outdoor functions is done during morning hours.

Evening spraying in Wilmington has been scheduled on May 23, June 3, 10, 17, and 24. Note that it is impossible to cover the entire town in one evening. Scheduling will be based on actual mosquito population information.

If anyone wishes to have their property excluded from spraying, they should contact the town clerk (658-2030) or the CMMCP at 393-3055.

Wilmington senior topics

Thanks, Kiwanis

Our thanks is extended again this year to the Kiwanis Club. Last Monday evening 60 of our disabled and advanced age seniors were their guests. These seniors enjoyed a very delicious dinner and the very delightful musical talents of a terrific young man, as he played many of our favorites songs on the piano throughout the evening.

For the majority of these seniors it is very difficult to accept a dinner invitation. How lovely they looked. It was a pleasure to see the happiness on their faces as they enjoyed the evening, but for all involved in making it so enjoyable, the members of the Kiwanis Club who generously gave of their time and money to pay for the evening and the Council on Aging members who, along with the Kiwanis Club transported most of the guests. The greatest pleasure was ours. Thanks again, Kiwanis for another job well done.

Protect your health

We have several programs at the center that can assist in protecting our own health, through preventive medicine. It is to your advantage to accept them. The town nurse sets aside Thursday afternoons starting at 1:30 p.m. to come to the center. Blood pressures are checked every Thursday and on the third Thursday of the month, diabetes tests are given. At the town hall cholesterol screening sponsored by the Council on Aging and the Board of Health is given, on appointment only by calling the nurse at 658-3311.

Dr. Leavitt: Podiatrist Dr. Leavitt is at the center every six weeks. He checks and treats ailments of the feet. Also, a licensed audiologist offers free hearing screening at the Center on the third Friday of the month from 10 a.m. to noon. He will answer questions about hearing aids and check them for proficiency. If necessary he will make referrals to your physician when he feels it is needed.

Beware "too good offers"

Now that the good weather has arrived we can expect to see more salespersons who walk in off the street and offer to fix our roof, driveway, siding, paint and do ground work. Many of these people will be legitimate. But far too many of them are con artists operating a scam to line their own pockets quickly. Beware of a person walking off the street or calls on the telephone who asks for a deposit first before doing the work. A legitimate business will wait a day or two for you to verify credentials. A call to the Police Department of Better Business Bureau could make a difference if you get your money's worth or are taken by a con artist. Never give money until you have checked out a company or organization.

Watch this one too

Another scam you should be careful of is senior organizations. Millions of seniors are regularly mailing a donation to various organizations that call themselves "Senior Advocate Organizations." They're claiming with your help of $1 or more they will be lobbying on your behalf to save your Social Security and Medicare by fighting for the rights of the elderly. We in Mass. as well as every other state in the country have Senior Citizen Organizations sponsored by Senior Citizen Centers who are respected by the State and Federal Government. They are lobbying on every issue that effects us as senior citizens. In Mass. we have the Mass. Association of Senior Citizen Centers, the AARP and the Gray Panthers. It is not necessary to pay an unknown organization to lobby for you.

Lions' dinner dance

The date and time of the Lions' Club annual dinner dance will be Wednesday, June 5 from 6 to 10 p.m. Music for dancing will be provided by Chet Harnden. This social is free through the generosity of the Lion's Club. It has been limited to 200. A waiting list will be formed when that number has been reached.

Memorial Day

Next Monday is Memorial Day; the center will be closed. Please make appointments accordingly as the minibus will not be on the road. Meals will not be delivered so if you wish an additional meal to carry you through the holiday. You may order additional ones during this week.

Mildred Woods to retire in June

Long time school employee Mildred Woods will be retiring at the end of June.

Miss Woods presently is administrative assistant to School Superintendent Bill Fay. She has been in the Wilmington system for 37 years, first as a part time clerk, then as a secretary, and finally an administrative assistant at the Roman House.

TMHS girls' track

TMHS girls make their mark

The Tewksbury School High School girls' track team certainly made its mark at the Andover Invitational Meet Saturday.

The girls took first place in six events, set meet records in three of them and finished with 114 points, two behind Andover's winning total and well ahead of third place Reading's 71 and Methuen's 65.

The day started out in spectacular fashion when Mary Brady got off a great leap of 17'3 3/4" to set a new record in the long jump and win the event. The old record was 17'1 1/2" set in 1985.

The Andover Invitational is a meet that has been going on for 30 years, so breaking a record in this meet is no small achievement.

After Mary's long jump, Anmari Kicza and Kristen Phillis stole the show at the high jump by taking first and second. Anmari soared over 5'2" and Kristen made 5'.

Heather Farrand ran away from the field in the mile run, striding through the last half mile virtually alone. Her winning time of 5:18.6 was her personal best this season and puts her among the top milers in Massachusetts.

Mary Brady came back from her long jump efforts to blow away the field in the 220. She not only finished a full second ahead of her closest competitor, but also set a new meet and TMHS record of 25.3 seconds.

Debbie Takach set the third meet record by demolishing the old mark in the 330 low hurdles by 1.7 seconds. Debbie left everyone in the dust as she toured the course in :46.0.

The mile relay team almost set yet another record when they clocked a very fast 4:10.3 only .3 seconds off the record established by Reading in 1983.

Debbie Takach, Anmari Kicza, Heather Farrand and Mary Brady finished way ahead of the competition, proving once again that TMHS has the strongest mile relay in the state.

Several TMHS athletes were candidates for the athlete of the meet award, as was Methuen's Diana Diza.

Unable to reach a decision, the meet officials awarded dual trophies to Diana Diaz and Mary Brady. Mary's two meet records and her blazing finish in the mile relay made her the logical choice for this honor.

Other TMHS girls had very good performances and scored important points for the team.

Amy Beauregard threw well in the discus and took second place. Lauren Andrioli had what, for her, was an average day in the triple jump, but her mark was still good enough to take second place.

Kim Farrand gave a valiant chase to Haverhill's Nicole Martin and took second place in the 880. Kori Wyshak had a slightly off day, but still took second place in the 100 meter hurdles.

It is illustrative of how talented these TMHS track athletes are that they still take second place at a meet in which 10 teams are competing, even when they have a bad day.

Other efforts were equally notable. Anmari Kicza ran the best 440 of her career and took fourth in the quarter mile.

Gretchen Weitz made her best javelin throw of the year and took fourth. Karen LaFave ran a personal best 880 (2:33.2) and took fifth place. The 4 x 110 relay team of Kori Wyshak, Erica Feick, Caroline Kondoleon and Katie Bolton ran their best time of the season and took fifth.

Christine Hooper ran a very gutsy two mile race and managed a sixth place. Christine and Karen LaFave, as freshmen, were very impressive as they placed in this major meet.

Debbie Takach completed the TMHS scoring by taking a sixth in the discus. Debbie works at this event "part time" but is still able to score points for the team.

All told, the Andover Invitational was a very successful meet for the TMHS girls' track team. The only thing that would have made it better would have been a first place finish over ever-powerful Andover. The last time the Tewksbury girls defeated Andover was in a dual meet in 1984.

Victory over the Golden Warriors has eluded Tewksbury ever since and it was frustrating not to be able to pull it off this time.

Perhaps the time will finally come on Saturday at the Class B State Meet in Reading.

Redmen rally

Goes the distance

Redmen pitcher Ken Chandler went the seven inning distance as his teammates rallied for three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning in a 4-3 win over Billerica Monday.

Early out

Tewksbury's Dave Wade (4) is tagged out at the plate early in Monday's win. The Redmen fell behind, 3-1 but came back to post their thirteenth victory of the season against just four losses.

Another early season blowout

Colonial Park Liquors 14 Jera Lyn 9

In this early blowout for Liquors, Chuch Osgood and John Smith had back-to-back homers in the Liquors six run first inning.

After the third inning, the Liquors squad were sitting on a comfortable 11-4 lead, which was mostly contributed by Osgood, who also rapped two triples.

Cruising along until the fifth inning were relief pitcher Bobby Butters, who replaced Osgood who was having control problems.

Steve Gilardi contributed his second double and brother Dana also had a double in this five run fifth inning.

McNamara Tire 17 Lions Club 4

McTire banged out 17 runs which included 11 hits. What helped MC win this one were the many walks.

McBatters reached base 13 times because of the bases on balls. Paul Cawthron had a big two-run triple in the first which really helped.

Meanwhile, the Lions Clubs bats have not awakened from the dead, and boy are they dead, as they managed only six hits off pitcher Mark Reed.

Charlie's Auto Body 13 Coombs/Winston's 0

Charlie's exploded with eight runs in the first inning, including five straight hits from Joe Razzo, John Chiampa, Bobby Kelly, Peter Brown and Ken Fienbel.

Chiampa and Fienbel were the big stars, as together they combined for a 4-4 night which included three doubles and a triple. Woos continued for Coombs, as they still have not scored a run this season.

Rocco's 15 Stelio's 14

This was definitely, by far the best game that has been played so far in this young season.

In the top of the first, Stelio's attacked with five runs on a big two-run single by John Cronin.

Rocco's answered back with seven runs, including a two-run homer from Richie Rappoli in his first at bat of the season. Bill Oatis and newcomer Bill LaVita added back-to-back doubles.

After the third inning the game was still 7-5, Rocco's when Stew Ring collected a two-run single to tie it up. In the top of the fifth Ed Adley and Bob Surran contributed with RBI singles to make it 10-7, Stelio's.

In the bottom half of that inning, Richie Rappoli banged his second homerun in three at bats, which cut the lead to two runs. The sixth inning remained scoreless, while the seventh was supplied by two runs from Stelio's which were costly to the Rocco's defense. With the score now 12-8, Stelio's lead, Rocco's had to find a way to come back, and they did.

With one out, John Lynch got his teammates started with a triple. Jimmy Rappoli added a double to make it 12-9. Rod Ferguson doubled Jimmy home to cut it down as to two runs.

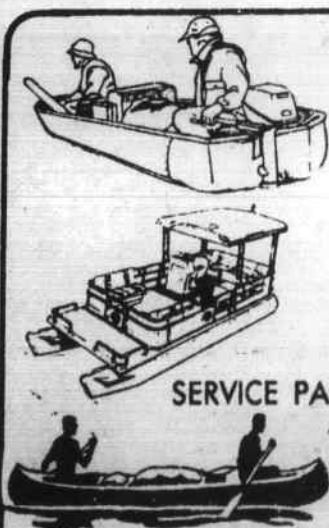

Now with two outs, Bill Wallace, Bill Oatis and Bill LaVita all singled to tie the game up and send it to extra innings.

In the top of the eighth Stelio's helped themselves with two runs on a big single from Kenny Sugarman.

Rocco's then came to bat thinking that they were not out of it, with the first two batters

Red Sox nip Twins, 3-2

Major League
Red Sox 3 Twins 2
Eric White took the mound for the first time this season for the Red Sox and came away with a victory. White had 12 strikeouts, but Mark Caples and Jeff Farese of the Twins both tagged Eric for homeruns. These were the only runs the Twins would score.

Red Sox rookie Richard Marquis had two hits to lead the team in batting. Daniel DiCenso of the Twins pitched several good innings and contributed a double.

Red Sox 7 A's 5
The Red Sox, after a shaky start, settled down behind the 10 strikeout pitching of Chris DiJulia. Jean Giangregorio had three hits, followed by two hits each for Dave Santini and Mike Nadeau.

Mike Gargan pitched well for the A's and had several great defensive plays behind him, especially a key grab made by Peter Grasso playing an excellent secondbase.

Red Sox 5 Yankees 3
Richie Gillis pitched a nine strikeout game and blasted a homerun into centerfield, but the Red Sox hung on to defeat a very strong Yankees team.

Jason Giangregorio posted his third consecutive win on the mound and was throwing heat, as he registered seven strikeouts.

Once again Dave Santini was like lightning on the basepaths and made a crucial catch in the last inning.

Shawn Sullivan made a major league catch in leftfield and Chris DiJulia, playing shortstop, threw a runner out at home.

Phil Bates had a key hit for the Red Sox, as did Buddy Phillips for the Yankees. This was a well played, well coached game and both teams should be praised for a job well done.

White Sox 8 A's 5
Lee Trimarchi (eight k's) and John Considine (seven k's) combined to no-hit the A's.

However, the A's were walked 13 times, and scored on five of those walks. Jay Isberg (single and triple), John Considine (single and double), Nick Palvidis, P.J. Heffernan and Trimarchi led the Sox on offense. Jeff Riese and Tom Baratta played strong defensive games for the Sox.

Grasso walked four times for the A's. Gargan and Rob Eldridge played well defensively for the Green Machine.

Yankees 4 White Sox 3
In a well pitched game, the Yankees scored three runs in the bottom half of the sixth to defeat the White Sox.

Pitching a two-hitter for the White Sox was Lee Trimarchi. Trimarchi kept the Yankee bats quiet for five innings, but tired in the sixth, giving up three walks and two hits.

Yankee pitchers Rich Gillis, who pitched three scoreless innings, and Scott Swiezinski, who finished up the last three innings giving up one run in each of the innings, helped the cause. White Sox hitters were Lee Trimarchi, John Considine, Tommy Baratta and Jimmy Butter.

George Phillips was the hero for the Yankees, with a basehit driving in two runs. The other Yankee hitter was Tim Gillis.

White Sox 11 Twins 10
P.J. Heffernan scored the winning run in the home half of the last inning to give the White Sox a hard earned victory over the never say die Twins.

The Sox defense was led by the timely hitting of Lee Trimarchi (three), John Considine, Heffernan and Jeff Riese. Riese and Jay Isberg played strong defensive games.

Yankees 5 Orioles 1
This game came after finishing the conclusion of the opening game tie, which saw the Orioles score in the 10th inning, to win, 9-8.

The Yankees scored five runs in the second inning. Pitchers for the Orioles were J.R. Civetti, Shawn Kerrigan and Craig McLaren.

The Yankee pitchers were Ryan Haubner, who allowed one run on two hits, two walks and four strikeouts. Richie Gillis pitched the last three innings, allowing no hits, no runs, one base on balls and six strikeouts.

Getting two Oriole hits was Billy Covino. The Yankee hitters were Shane Warford, George Phillips, Scott Fullerton with singles and Richie Gillis, who doubled off the fence. There were many fine defensive plays during the day. The Gillis boys each turned in a fine defensive play along with key plays by Ryan Haubner, Brian Herman, Mike Bayles and John Paul Civetti.

Wilmington Youth SoccerUnder 10 squad blanks Billerica

Boys' under 10-Div I
After losing and tying its two previous games, Wilmington played an inspired game to defeat Billerica, 1-0. In an excellently played game by both teams, Justin Vallas kicked home T.J. Flynn's centering pass for the game's only score.

After a first half in which both teams had solid scoring opportunities turned away, Wilmington turned up the intensity and gained the territorial play throughout the second half.

Darren Arciero and Peter Bamberg kept the pressure on, but could not beat the Billerica goalie.

Once again, Wilmington's defense was sparked by the return of Kevin Riley from a bout with the chicken pox, was outstanding.

Wilmington's win improved its record to 4-1-1 and moved them into first place.

The scoring duo of Tom Doyle and Dennis Robillard, along with the hustle of Joel Guzinski, Matt Goldblatt and Cory Calway led the Three Musketeers.

The Skittles responded with two goals by Joseph Celon and Bryan Sollazzo, while Patrick Maloney booted in one. Billy Sinopoli, Chad Paquin and Patrick McDonough played well.

Bonkers vs M&M's
Outstanding players for the Bonkers were Steve Crawford and Patrick Reardon.

For the M&M's, multiple goals were scored by Richie Lee and Mark Moran, while Alfredo Badolato and Archie Deletter added one each.

Snickers vs Milky Ways Goal scorers for the Snickers were Keith Frongillo, Andy Bamberg and Brian Langone, with assists by Matthew Rockoff and solid goalkeeping by Nicholas Gibson.

Milky Ways' scorer was Matthew Trimarchi. Nicholas Eaton and Ryan Patrie provided super hustle. Travers Peterson and Patrick Taylor were awesome in goal.

Girls' Kindergarten Division

Daisies vs Violets
The Daisies were led by the scoring of Tara Binkowski and Michelle Souza, with extra efforts by Kristen Emde, Brittany Irwin and Courtney Hassey.

The Violets offense was sparked by the plays of Juliann Stokes and Erin Scheibel, while Vanessa Marsh and Catherine Michaud were the defensive stoppers.

Roses vs Carnations
Meghan Fudge and Ashley Morgado netted goals for the Roses, with Tricia Fennelly, Shannon Kent and Lori Gillespie providing super efforts.

The Carnations struck back on

The keys to good, clean fishing fun

by Bill Conlon
Fishing is fun. But it's always fun to compete, too. Sure it is.

Put two pals in a bass boat, hand them both fishing rods, and you can expect a contest to erupt. A friendly wager? Why certainly! The winner is the one who catches the (biggest, first, most) fish? Why not?

Loser buys the beer afterwards at the pub, fair enough? Absolutely. But what if you've been laid off for months, haven't worked since St. Swithins, while your pal wears a suit to work and earns more in one year than you've made, total, since high school? It hardly seems fair to buy beers for that lug. And he likes the expensive imports, too!

(Rumor has it that "Budweiser" is a translation of the German word for plastic, but I can't verify that.)

Since your goal is to catch fish, there are only two ways to win your water. The most obvious way is to catch more-bigger-first fish.

The second way to win, not quite so obvious, is to keep your pal from bringing any fish into the boat. Ah! Here's where cleverness pays off!

1) Chemical warfare -- Keep a bottle of bug repellent handy at all times, and a small sprayer in your shirt pocket is perfect. When your fishin' buddy turns his back, shpritz his lure with insect repellent. That should keep fish from interrupting him. Motor oil is environmentally rude, so try garlic instead. Tobacco spittle is an old favorite, but it may be noticed, which isn't good.

2) Help him out -- When you reach the pond, immediately offer your partner a sure-fire, never-fail lure, one that you know for a cold fact has never caught a single fish in living memory. For instance, a blue rubber leech with green and pink flowers. Tell him the lure was red hot last week, but it has to be fished very, very slowly. If he begins to catch fish, try to be polite.

3) Keep him busy -- Give him the "honor" of running the motor, depth finder, radio, bilge pump, cooler, live well, etc., then ask him for frequent updates on the depth, type of bottom, the Red Sox score, bilge level, time, status of the live well, gimme another drink, and we should move to a new spot. Don't let him get his line wet. Timing is the key to success on this one.

4) Nail him -- Ooh, this one is nasty, and you need to ask yourself just how bad you want to win. Bad enough, right? Tie on an utterly useless lure, such as the "swimming-bird" plug that your mother bought as a joke, then swing it around and tag your buddy. Snag him gently, but aim the hook for a sleeve or the back of his jacket. Breaking skin is considered poor sportsmanship. As he's untangling the hooks, ask him sweetly if he'd snip your line so you can get back to fishing. This trick should be used sparingly, since he might get suspicious after you've hooked him five or six times. So apologize! Be sincere!

(P.S. DON'T do it. I'm kidding. This is humor, remember?)

5) Be secretive -- Never, ever let him see what you're using. Turn your back when unhooking fish and immediately toss your lure back in the water so he can't see it. Should he ask, tell him you're using a blue rubber leech with green and pink flowers, a sure-fire fish catcher. If he asks for one, charge him $5.

6) Flame out! -- Butt smokers should consider the possibility of an "accidental" line sizzle. A cigarette will snap fishing line in an instant, so if his line goes by your face, turn your head and ... oops! If you're quick, you can grab his severed line and earn a free lure in the bargain, but only if he's using a hot lure. You don't need another blue rubber leech, do you? And do apologize!

7) Line drive -- Electric boat motors can tangle a line something awful. Be creative, with his line.

8) Net result -- Getting the net under a hooked fish is tricky, often resulting in broken line or lost fish. He's playing the fish, so you have to handle the net. Gauge the size of the fish before deciding to use this. No sense being mean, is there?

9) Be observant -- This isn't a top tactic, but don't miss the chance to point out every bird, tree, bush, plane, snapping turtle, boat, weed, cloud, girl and swirl on or over the pond. If he's busy looking around, he isn't watching what he's doing.

10) Invite his kids -- Age 7 or below. How can you miss? The key is to bring his kids, not yours.

11) Did I say that? -- Every so often, yank back with your rod and yell "JEEZ! Missed him!" After a few times, he'll think you have the better lure, so he'll switch to a blue rubber leech, too. Just don't let him see you changing back afterwards. Lying is part of fishing, isn't it?

These nasty tactics should only be used if your partner is catching 'em left and right, or appears ready to do so. If you're the one hauling 'em in, watch out for subversive tactics on his part. Remember, he's tricky.

If all else fails, call the bar before you head out, and have them warm up a few imported beers. Then tell your buddy that their beer cooler is broken. Might save a few bucks.

Anybody want to go fishing?

Tackle Box

The Spring 1991 edition of Massachusetts Wildlife held a mystery. In a story about the history of carp, Peter Mirick mentioned that a shipment of the (then) precious fish was spread to various parties in the state and "putting the remaining 400 into Tewksbury Reservoir." This week I called and asked Pete just where Tewksbury Reservoir is located. He said he saw the reference in an 1881 report by the Massachusetts Commissioner of Fisheries, which he's sending along, and added that he'll try to track down the mystery.

The top story out of the May 11 "Son of Great Race," the annual canoe race held on the Shawheen River by SWEAT, involved a contestant whose wife was there at the launching, and she reminded him as he left about the beeper.

After the canoes headed down the river, Rick Barry from SWEAT just had to ask her about the beeper. The lady said she was in labor at the time, and that her hubby carried a beeper in case things got serious. (Makes you wonder what "serious" means, doesn't it?) It seems hubby had to pass on the Great Race one year, because of their wedding day, and she didn't want to interrupt his fun again. The man with the beeper won the canoe race, and by then her contractions were only ten minutes apart, so off they went to a hospital.

Is this guy real or am I missing the point? Rick Barry told me this story, so check it with him. I pass.

'Tis the season for Mass. Morels

by Capt. Larz Neilson
Every year during the month of May the people of Massachusetts may, if they wish, seek out the Sponge Mushroom, otherwise known as the Esculant Morel. Not a large mushroom, it is one of the tastiest, and is also one that can be readily recognized once the particulars of the plant are known. There are several plants in the morel family, but as far as the writer knows only the Sponge Mushroom is to be found in Massachusetts.

The hunting of morel mushrooms is fun, and starts early in the month of May. Not until this year has the writer known of a terminal hunting date, and the circumstances are perhaps worth relating.

The writer began his search for morels in the early 1980s. He would find them, in the grass, possibly other places. The first he ever found were growing in lilac bushes.

Larz wrote of them, and photographed morels for the paper. Readers in Tewksbury and Wilmington responded. Larz would in turn respond, and visit homes after telephone calls. Almost invariably, after identification had been made and demonstrated, the home owner would still refuse to eat the morel, and tell the writer he could take them, if he so wished. Of course the writer could not refuse, and a nice addition was available for a lunch.

Quite often there would be a second telephone call, the next year. Larz would again identify the sponge morel, and again he would take them home.

Then there would never be a third call.

Either there were no more morels growing at the home of the person who made the calls, or else that person had decided that if Larz could eat morels two years in succession, and still be a living part of the community, then maybe those morels were good to eat.

It was probably in 1984 that a telephone call from the home of Sam Bertwell on Chestnut Street in Wilmington. Sam was a classmate of the writer, back in the 1920s, with the teacher being Carolyn Swain. In recent years Sam has become well known to the younger (very youngest) generation, especially in the days before Christmas, when he would don a red suit of clothes and a nice white beard.

The writer identified the morels for two years. Then there were no more calls. Maybe there were no more, on the Bertwell property.

Last year, on the 21st of May there was a call from Ann Berghaus of 21 Chestnut St. Nice large morels were growing, in back, six and a quarter inches tall, the largest Larz had ever seen. Ann didn't want them. Probably she did not dare to eat them.

This year there was another call, on the 2nd of May. Again Larz identified them as sponge morels. The morels were very small, so Larz promised a second visit on May 15.

On May 15 the morels were growing nicely, and Larz decided that it might be well to let them grow for another three days, until Saturday the 18th.

But on Friday there was a call from Ann. The morels had collapsed.

That's what happens when a mushroom produces spores. There are no seeds, only microscopic spores, which are blown about by the winds. Millions of spores are emitted, and then the mushroom collapses and dies. The spores are carried on the wind to neighbor's property, and further, some times much further.

And Friday was the 17th of May. The lesson was that morels, in this part of the country, exist from about May 1 to May 17.

But there was another lesson, one that Larz had suspected, during May 1991.

Barbara Buck, a daughter of Sam Bertwell, told Larz that she had arrived home on a Wednesday evening, to find her sister cutting up a nice large morel and making soup.

Yes, gentle reader. There have been many families which have called Larz, and then, two years later, decided to eat the morels instead of calling him again.

The morel eating population of Tewksbury and Wilmington has grown during the past 10 years.

Sponge mushrooms

Suzanne Berghaus examines some Morels. The appearance of the plant shows why the word "sponge" is a part of the name. Down wind of the Berghaus property is the home of Noel Baratta, which may well also have some of the sponge mushrooms.

Shawsheen Tech honors students

In an innovative program now in its fifth year, 121 students at Shawsheen Tech were guests at Awards Appreciation Nights held on April 25 and May 16. Students and their parents enjoyed lasagna dinners, served by their teachers. The young people did not receive typical athletic or academic accolades - they were honored for being good citizens.

"This program not only provides recognition to the student who makes a sincere effort, but also shows evidence of family support," said John Bowen, dean of students who started the program in 1986. Bowen told students the qualities for which they were chosen - good attendance, effort, punctuality, and sincerity - would bode well for them all their lives. Those honored had been nominated and deemed "pleasant to teach" by academic and vocational instructors.

Students received pins, which parents put on their son or daughter, and certificates, "so parents will have something, too" Bowen said.

To show their appreciation to the 121 good citizens and their families, about 20 teachers and administrators set up and served family style meals on two nights to accommodate the approximately 400 people who attended one of the two dinners. Bowen said teachers and administrators, many of whom "come back year after year," serve as waiters and waitresses, "all on a volunteer basis." Bakers Joe Clain and Gary Levin, instructors in the Shawsheen Tech bake shop prepared rolls and dessert. Preparation of the dinner is under the direction of culinary instructors Charlie Fleming and Al Mazman, "who now have things down to a science," Bowen said.

Students honored included 29 seniors, 34 juniors, 41 sophomores and 17 freshmen. Since the citizenship awards program began during the 1986-87 school year, more than 800 citizenship awards have been, given.

4 Wakefield youths participate

Symphony Orchestra

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Youth is a much talked about subject lately but Wakefield youths are presently engaged in an action that adds peace and culture to the world rather than the violence and other worries associated with some of their peers.

The four are Stephen Leary, Mark Manthy, Kristen Noren and Maureen Wall who are serious enough about their talent and art to be playing with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GYBSO).

The orchestra's name belies its scope as its 178 members in the two main groups come from as far as: Mount Desert, Maine to the north; Putnam, Vermont to the northwest; and, Wilbraham to the west. All of the members must pass a stringent audition before being allowed into the group.

Aside from the Senior Orchestra and the Repertory Orchestra, GYBSO Executive Director Parker Monroe explained that the group also has a chamber orchestra open to members of the Senior Orchestra, a woodwind ensemble, a brass ensemble and a percussion ensemble. Monroe also noted that GYBSO is a member of STEP (the String Training and Education Program) with Boston University, New England Conservatory of Music and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It also has a group called String Training Ensemble (STE). He noted that both groups provide outreach to minorities and members of STE are provided with full scholarships for their music lessons.

The String Scholarship Ensemble provides everything for free. All they (the students) have to do is go home and work at it," Monroe said.

"A student with talent and not able to afford it (membership into the main group) will be promoted," he added.

Monroe noted that membership in the group is $250-per-year for the season from September to

PART TWO

Anthony gave in, and told Cynthia to meet him at a local restaurant that was familiar to the both of them. "We met, as planned," he said. "At first, I was a little nervous. I didn't know what to expect. I wasn't sure of how she'd look, especially if she was still using drugs. I wasn't sure of what she wanted to say to me. I wondered if she was going to ask for money, which I wouldn't have given her, because I knew she'd only spend it on drugs. My fears, I knew, were all connected to past experiences with Cynthia. I had to put them at ease; I had to take the chance, and see what this surprise meeting was all about."

Anthony was pleasantly surprised to discover Cynthia sitting at a table, drinking a gingerale. "I said to her, 'What, no beer?'" he told us. "It was one of the very few times I had ever seen her in a restaurant not drinking an alcoholic beverage. It occurred to me that perhaps she had gone back into a recovery program."

After exchanging some talk, Anthony asked Cynthia to get to the point of their meeting. "I was again surprised," he said. "She told me that she had been thinking a lot about us, that she decided to quit taking drugs, to cut back on her drinking, and to focus on putting our relationship back on track, if it was possible."

Anthony was reticent, unwilling to talk about putting their relationship back together. "I did tell her that I still cared about her, but that too much had happened for me to even consider getting back together at this time," he said. "Inside, I wanted to reach out for her, to pull her back into my life

"JERRY'S KIDS" BEST FRIENDS -- Getting ready for the fourth annual K-9 Walk for Jerry's Kids scheduled for Sunday, June 9 in Wakefield are Scott Maguire, a young man with muscular dystrophy from Salem and his buddy, "Dog Friday." The K-9 Walk is a leisurely three mile charity walk around beautiful Lake Quannapowitt specially designed for dogs and their owners.

K-9 MDA Walk planned for June 9

People and their pets will put their best feet forward for a good cause at the K-9 Walk for "Jerry's Kids" on Sunday, June 9, in Wakefield. The 1991 K-9 Walk to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA), supported by Pedigree® food for dogs, is a leisurely three-mile stroll around beautiful Lake Quannapowitt, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

"This is a terrific opportunity for folks in the community to come out, enjoy the fresh air, and help those who are less fortunate than they are," says Arthur Levine, district director of the MDA. "The K-9 Walk is a full day of fun for all members of the family, including the four-legged ones."

There will be prizes awarded to the top fundraising teams, including a Grand Prize of a trip for four to Orlando, Florida, home of Walt Disney World. Each owner-pet team will also receive a bandanna, a dog care video, a frisbee and other goodies. At the finish line, participants and their families are invited to try out the Pedigree Pentathlon obstacle course and the Pedigree Selectadog computer; enjoy the live musical entertainment, a "Crazy Dog Tricks" contest, and meet Beau, the faithful canine sidekick of Broadway's

"Annie," and his trainer, Bill Berloni, "Dog Trainer to the Stars."

This is the fourth year for the Wakefield K-9 Walk, and the MDA expects to have its best turnout ever. In 1990, 263 teams participated, more than any other K-9 Walk in the country. "Through team donations," said Arthur Levine, "we raised over $31,000 to help combat neuro-muscular diseases in America's children." Because of the popularity of this event, and the support the MDA has received from Pedigree® food for dogs and WSSH-FM, Walk organizers are hoping to attract 500 teams in 1991.

Frank Connelly, regional sales manager for Pedigree® food for dogs, agrees with Levine, "The time is right for a surge in K-9 Walk Participants. The Walk is a terrific opportunity for people with worthy intentions to do some good for those less fortunate than themselves."

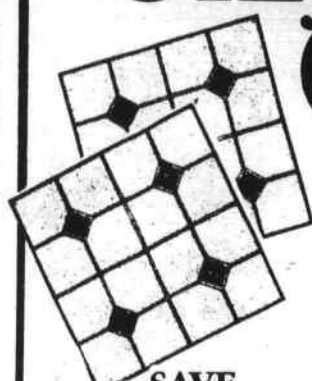

Matthew Oulette, a seventh-grader from Saugus, is this year's Massachusetts state poster child for MDA. Last year he was co-Grand Prize winner. Matthew will be participating again this year with his dog, Sachem. Scott

Maguire, 25, of Salem, will also take part with his support dog, Jordan. Even though Scott is confined to a wheelchair, he lives independently, with Jordan, who helps him with tasks such as turning on lights, moving his chair, retrieving dropped objects and opening doors.

For more information and to receive a free K-9 kit call (508) 777-0333.

Monroe said "No family is turned away for financial reasons."

The four Wakefieldians are serious enough to join their contemporaries who travel from all over New England.

What does it take to come in every Sunday for 35 weeks," asked Monroe. Providing his own answer, he said "It is a very, very dedicated group."

He also noted that the members of the group are from various social strata from the very wealthy to those of modest means and lower incomes.

"The glue here is music," Monroe said, adding "Everybody here is serious. They want to be here."

As to how the four local students rate their own seriousness, a conversation with each of them shows that music makes up a good portion of their present lives. However, it does not make up all their lives.

Manthy and Leary add sports to their outside concerns. Leary, 14, a string bassist, adds tennis and hockey to his list of interests. He plays on the respective teams at Wakefield High School.

Manthy, 15, plays the violin. Although he is not on any teams, he also plays tennis and hockey in his spare (?) time. The question mark is due to the fact that he also plays in the Wakefield High School Orchestra, a chamber group and is in charge of a string quartet.

"I also spend some time with my girlfriend," Leary said.

Noren's activities are mostly musically oriented. However, the 16-year-old string bassist includes dancing, the Wakefield High School Drama Club, the High School Jazz Orchestra, the Marching Band, the Starlighters, and the Choir among her many activities.

She also likes to spend time with her friends who are for the most part her colleagues in the various groups.

Wall, 16, is also a string bassist. In her spare time she also serves the American Field Service Club (helping foreign exchange students) at Wakefield High School, playing in the concert band, singing with the chorus and playing in several other bands and orchestras.

She also has the distinction of playing in both the senior group and the junior repertory group. Wall is a principal in the latter.

The distinction does not just come from those in authority.

As you observe the High School Junior at her art, she has a very expressive face, and you can read each mistake and triumph.

When she was asked if that was a sign of how much she enjoys her music, a peer responded "she is awesome. She is the best."

Manthy shows a much more intense face as he bows his violin. And some of the pressure shows as Wall encourages him to his future with the Senior Orchestra.

Both players admit that competition for a violinist is very stiff.

Watching Noren, during a rehearsal with the Senior Orchestra, one cannot help but notice her relaxed casual attitude.

This may come from a feeling of self-confidence that the young lady exudes.

Noren's father Daniel said "She's always been pretty self-confident."

Leary is the youngest of the four and was urged by them to tryout for the orchestra. It is his first year with GYBSO.

All four members share the same excitement of having been able to play at Boston University's Sanders Theater and at Symphony Hall.

"Playing at Sanders Theater is better than playing at Symphony Hall, but playing at Symphony Hall is a great honor for someone my age," Manthy said.

Manthy crossed his fingers when he was asked about a future as a professional musician.

"I express myself in music," he said.

"I hope for a career somewhere in music. I wouldn't mind arranging or conducting and I enjoy writing," Manthy added.

Wall also expressed her hope of someday turning professional but as with Noren a college career is coming first.

Noren admitted that she does not know if she will ever be a professional. However, she said "Music will always be a part of my life."

A history of the group states that GYBSO was started in 1958, "when Boston University "was urged to go beyond the limits of its charter and establish a youth orchestra for junior and senior high school students."

At that time community leaders organized GYBSO as a non-profit organization with its own Board of Directors.

first musical director of the group, Dr. Marvin Rabin led them in performances at Carnegie Hall and at the White House in 1962.

In 1967, under the direction of Walter Eisenberg, GYBSO started a series of international tours. Those tours have continued until this year, when they were interrupted due to the mid-east war.

However, Leary, Manthy, Noren and Wall are looking forward to their continuation next year.

The group is presently under the musical direction of David Commanday, who received his training at Harvard University and at Vienna Academy of Music. He is presently a professor of music and Music Director at the university of Virginia and was the music director with the Boston Ballet.

Joel Bard is the assistant conductor. He is a graduate of the Julliard School with a Masters of Music.

Bard presently is at work on his Ph.D. in molecular biology at Harvard University.

Monroe noted that GYBSO has had a number of noted musicians who have graduated from the group since its inception.

Five alumni presently perform with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and several others are with the symphonies in Atlanta, Baltimore, and San Francisco, as well as the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Living proof that when every second counts, you can count on us.

Heidi DiRienzo had just given birth to a healthy baby girl. Easily. And naturally. At a time of such happiness, what more could a woman need? A lot more, in Heidi's case. More doctors. More blood. More emergency care than anyone had anticipated as a postpartum hemorrhage suddenly changed a moment of joy to one of great risk. Fortunately, Heidi couldn't have been in better hands.

The New England Memorial obstetrical team is a finely-tuned group of specialists trained to handle complications with crucial speed, coordinating every move to assist and support one another. Together, they turned a life-threatening crisis around. The ample supply of blood and the presence of a full-time on-staff anesthesiologist were also vital factors in Heidi's swift stabilization.

Naturally, we wish you an easy, uncomplicated labor and hope the only aspects of our OB or midwifery programs you need to experience are our caring professionals and comforting setting—complete with warming lights and therapeutic whirlpool baths. It's reassuring to know, however, that when every second counts, you can count on us. And Heidi DiRienzo is living proof.

School notes
by phyllis nissen

—Lynnfield School Lunch Supervisor Veronica DeLeo attributes a midyear deficit of $14,077 in the school lunch program to a high rate of student illness, and the economy.

For the first time in her five years in the program, it lost 100 students per day in January and 80 in February.

DeLeo is looking at cutting back expenses by examining hours put into the program and different menus, hoping for a balanced budget at year's end when subsidies of $9,528 should lessen the deficit to about $4,500.

—Amid pancakes, eggs, sausages, bacon, and pastry, the Tewksbury Memorial High School Parent Advisory Council will host its ninth annual senior prom breakfast at the North Street School after students attend their prom on May 30th at the Danversport Yacht Club.

The tradition began nine years ago as an effort to provide a stop for the students between the prom and home. For more information, contact Jane Merritt, Virginia Merritt or Brenda Orio.

—Thirty-seven seventh graders from Reading's Coolidge Middle School recently spent their April vacation in Nature's Classroom at Prindle Pond in Charlton, Mass. - thanks to science teacher John Doherty of North Reading, wife Laurie and friend Jeff Strong.

Emphasizing the themes "I Am Loving and Capable - I Am Lovable and Caring," the environmental classroom consists of field trips, classes, special activities, and meals.

The 10-member field groups, each led by a program counselor, learn to understand and recognize environmental relationships, gain team-building skills, and become lifelong students of the environment.

Activities include adventure team which encompasses challenges like scaling a 13-foot wall; pond and swamp exploration; visits to the on-site farm; and nature hikes through the woods.

Class electives include dissections, egg drops, orienteering, suspension bridge construction, study of the skeletal system, an archaeological dig, and creative writing.

Special activities include basketball games, night hikes without flashlights, environmental hearings, a campfire, and singing. And mealtimes provide the chance to catch up on daily events and monitor food waste.

—With the help of a national grant, Mrs. Stevens' Stoneham High English class has formed a big brother - big sister alliance with Ms. Talanian's Colonial Park second grade, reading with them earlier in the year and recently accompanying them on a field trip to the Children's Museum, where the older students helped the younger ones in such matters as holding chopsticks, understanding telephones and analyzing thumb prints.

—Winchester Assistant Superintendent of Schools David Ackerman reports that the decline in State Basic Skills test scores has not been seen in Winchester where scores have climbed steadily during the past four years.

According to Ackerman, the tests represent minimum competency standards which Winchester's school program aims well beyond, in all curriculum areas.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Years ago, Henry Johnson was given a prize of $80 to have his lawn moved. The landscaper said that it required eight men to do the job. Henry said that it was worth $80 just to see why it took eight men to do such a small job. The next morning a truck with eight men aboard showed up. Looking out the window, Henry saw this scenario: two lawnmowers were taken off the truck, then two "Johnny-on-the-Spot" were placed at the back end of the lawn. The next four house Henry saw two men were coming, two men were going, two men were sitting and two men were mowing. Folks, sometimes I wonder if that same routine is common on some jobs today.

A panhandler approached George Gould and said, "Sir, will you give me a dollar for a sandwich?" "I'd be glad to give you a dollar but I'm not hungry. Let me see the sandwich anyway. I may save it for tomorrow!" I was told that Frank LeMoure was vaccinated with a phonograph needle. Frank made medical history - he wore out two sets of tonsils.

With the water bills being so high my friend Joe "Dumpy" D'Ambrosio is going to plant one row of potatoes and then one row of onions and so forth in his garden. He hopes that the onions will make the "eyes" of the potatoes water so it will be "self irrigating."

Do you want to get back at your neighbors? Buy each one of their kids a drum. Metro Police Officer Bob Giguere asked an accident victim lying on the street, "Are you hurt badly, sir?" "How the heck do I know? I'm a doctor not a lawyer!" Kathy went to the Beauty Parlor. For three days she looked beautiful - then - the mud fell off. The Ten Commandments were short, clear and easily understood, that's because they were written without the help of a lawyer.

I had an "Ugly Bartender" contest last year and some wise joker sent in a picture of me and the judges awarded me First Prize. Folks, please don't ask for "One more for the road." You may get a State Trooper for a "chaser." Too many women get married before they can really support a husband. A farmer who was raising chickens, ducks and geese was asked, "What's the difference between a goose and a gander?" "I don't know," he said "and I really don't care because I let them find that out themselves."

June is traditionally graduation month. When I graduated high school my teachers were the happiest people present. Each guest speaker sounded like a broken record of the speaker before him. I forgot everything they said ten minutes after they said it. It's been many summers (and winters too) since my graduation day but I still remember the words of my former teacher, Miss Mary Sullivan, when she shook my hand and said, "You'll never amount to anything. Your jokes, quips and puns that you tortured us with for three years will get you nowhere." Well, if Miss Sullivan meant that I wouldn't make a great deal of money - then she was right. But I don't measure success by how much money is made. I judge a successful person by how many people's lives are happier and brighter because of what you have said or done.

I apologize to Emily Fraher of Woburn (Woodchips' number one fan) for spelling her name wrong. My father would boast that he knew the greatest of them all - John L. Sullivan. Everywhere he went he would proudly say (extending his hand), "shake the hand that shook the hand of John L. Sullivan!" Well, when I met and shook the hand of Bill McGarr at the Woburn Elks Club, I understood why my father was so jubilant about meeting an outstanding fighter, gentleman and humanitarian. John L. Bill McGarr is to me, John L. Sullivan personified.

Kern said it well, "Most men need two women in their lives - a secretary to take everything down and a wife to pick everything up." Paul Simon of Winchester said to me, "Woodchips, you have no equals - only superiors." By the way Paul, did you ever receive an answer to your second letter to the Corinthians?

Folks, there isn't anything friendlier than a wet dog. When Rowan Fitzgerald called Uncle John Shea and asked for a loan of $200, Uncle John said, "What did you say?" "I said, can I borrow $200 from you?" "What did you say?" At that moment the telephone operator cut in and said, "Sir, there isn't anything wrong with your phone, I can hear your party perfectly well." "Is that so? Well, in that case you give that creep the $200 he wants!" Ann Landers said it well, "There are two kinds of people at every party - those who want to go home and those who don't. The trouble is they are almost always married to each other." A rooster's lament - Yesterday an egg, today a rooster and tomorrow a featherduster! Folks, Yesterday is history - tomorrow a mystery - so enjoy today!

Personality Winners: - Bud Spence, Bill Carlson and Tom Spence are the owners of Spence Farm, Herman Graham farm Foreman and Jackie Young farm stand Manager, also, Dorothy

Livolsi, Jeanette Luizza, Florence Volpe, John E. Olson, Jill O'Neill and George and Mary Poole, all of Woburn; Jim Fitzgerald, Karl Wurzel, Marty Finkelson, John Lovetere, Pamela MacKill, Ken Couture, Patricia Millward, Richard Liberace, Anthony Falco and John Apidianakis, all of Winchester; Pam Overton, Dick and Lois Midwood, Walter and Mary Sullivan, Coach Peter Moscarillo, Kevin Chambers, Fran McHugh, Paul Sumner and Charlene MacCurtin, all of Reading; Paula Novelli, Angelique Mueller, Meghan

Dwyer, Amy Courcy, Kim Coogan, Jen DelRossie, Cara Dwyer, Steve Cassavant and Eugene Horn, all of Wakefield.

Also, Coach Mary McGinn, Katie Gallagher, Allyson McGinn, Colleen Killion, Lyn Pandolfo, Bill Pierce and Brett Sousa, all of Burlington; Linda Genovese, Richard Penta, Colleen Hagerty, George Fortin, Lisa McAuliffe, Jennifer Cuddy, Caroline Guy, Brent Barringer, John Fogarty and Gus and Margaret Strangle, all of North Reading; Stephen Foley, Coach George Ward, Lisa Ferragamo, Nikki Sullivan, Al

Kopek, Chris Busby, Ms. Deborah Deacon, Lynette Rizzo, Claudia Reiss, Cristina Pascuccio, Mrs. Sharon Miller and Laura Incatasciato (congratulations Laura for your National Award in Art), all from Stoneham; Minuteman Adj. Sgt. Jim Murray, Sarah Phillips, Carrie Riviera, Jenn Messina, Coach Mike Tammaro, Kevin DiGiovanni, Dave Toto, Shawn Perreault, Frank Mazzoni and Joan Marsi, all of Wilmington; Suzanne Cosby, Marie Woodland, Kerry Woodland, Arthur Merritt, Steven Brann, Keith Kennedy, Daniel Ewing, Michael Doherty, Kathleen Manseau, John Land and Scott Selissen, all of Tewksbury; A special "hello" to my Tewksbury No. 1 fan Ed Sargent.

I'm a carpenter (retired) not a farmer. I asked Bill Carlson of Spence Farm for a job years ago and he asked me, "Chips, do you know what a weed is?" "Of course I do," I replied, "I pull everything up and if it grows again, it's a weed!" I then applied for a job with a big tree company - they had 'branches' all over the country. "How can you tell a Dogwood tree?" I was asked. "By its bark!" I said. I didn't get that job either. Super Star is Judy Spence.

Bob Franke at the Linden Tree

On Saturday, June 1, the Linden Tree Coffeehouse in Wakefield will feature an evening with one of New England's finest performers: Singer/songwriter Bob Franke. Franke was nominated as an Outstanding Folk Act by the 1990 Boston Music Awards. He has appeared in coffeehouses, clubs, colleges and festivals in 25 states and four Canadian provinces.

Franke's songs have brought national recognition to him as an important contemporary songwriter who deals with love in mature, complex and provocative ways. Franke gets in focus, with a novelist's attention to detail, in just a few lines.

His album songs have been recorded by many artists. In addition his album Brief Histories was named one of the ten best albums of 1989 by Boston Globe critic Scott Alarik and nominated as an Outstanding Folk Album by the 1990 Boston Music Awards.

Franke's show is the last Linden Tree Coffeehouse concert for this season. Partial funding for this special event has been provided by the Wakefield Arts Lottery Council.

At 8 p.m. there will be an opening "Open Mike" set followed by Bob Franke. Admission is $7. Homemade refreshments will also be available.

The Linden Tree Coffeehouse is located downstairs at the Unitarian-Universalist Church, 326 Main St., Wakefield. For more information or to perform during the "open mike" call (617) 246-2836.

"Summer Proof" your child program offered June 5

What is the single most common reason for a visit to a pediatrician? When can parents treat their child at home and when should they see their doctor? How can parents reduce the potential risks their children face during the summer?

All of the questions, and many more, will be answered on Wednesday, June 5, at the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital Perkins Lecture hall at 7 p.m. by Doctor Stephen Kanarek, Doctor Paulette Gebhardt and Doctor Judith Toffel-Licini of Pediatric Health Care Associates, (PHCA).

In order to celebrate the opening of their new Melrose Office, at 830 Main Street, PHCA is presenting this free educational program on child care and safety in association with the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital.

The new Main Street location of Pediatric Health Care Associates, joins other offices operated by the practice in Salem, Lynn and Peabody. Unique features of the 25-year old practice include separate sick and well waiting rooms in each of the offices, a morning call hour directly to a physician or a nurse practitioner, a developmental specialist who administers several developmental screening tests, a nutritionist, evening and weekend office hours, and 24-hour/365-day-a-year physician coverage.

The topics of the June 5th program will include:
"An update on ear infections. Why so many?"

All of the physicians at Pediatric Health Care Associates are fellows of the American Academy of Pediatrics and have admitting privileges at North Shore Children's Hospital and Melrose-Wakefield Hospital.

For more information about the evening educational talk, interested parents can contact Melrose-Wakefield Hospital Public Relations Dept., (617) 979-3507.

"Through our hotline we aim to help people avoid body mechanics that may contribute to back injury and help those with back pain get relief," said physical therapist Jonathan Cooperman, public relations chairman of APTA's Orthopedic Section.

Suggestions from physical therapists to avoid back pain include:

- Work on your posture. Don't slouch. Maintain the natural "arch" in your lower back whether standing or sitting.
- Lift with your legs. Don't bend over the object, bend your legs and keep your back straight. Most importantly, don't twist as you lift.
- Sit with care. Prolonged sitting in one position is a back hazard you might not suspect. Lumbar support and periodic breaks to move around are essential.
- Control your weight. Being overweight, especially if you have a "pot belly," puts added stress on your lower back.

Callers will receive a free brochure, "Taking Care of Your Back," which offers additional tips for preventing and alleviating back pain.
